Management's Discussion of Fund Performance

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Over the past year, managing a merger arbitrage strategy has been complex due to an evolving opportunity set and increased regulatory challenges, especially across the technology, healthcare, and energy sectors. High-profile acquisitions in technology and healthcare faced regulatory scrutiny, while energy deals, notably by Exxon and Chevron, thrived amid the green energy shift. However, the current Federal Trade Commission regime has made the management of the strategy more difficult, as their influence has contributed to increased deal breaks and lower closure probabilities. Top contributors for the year included moves by Exxon and Chevron, acquiring Pioneer Natural Resources and Hess Corporation, respectively. The Fund's top detractors for the year were Kimco Realty, acquiring RPT Realty, and Holly Energy Partners, acquired by HF Sinclair Corporation. Notable mega-deals announced throughout the year were Cisco's acquisition of Splunk for $28 billion and Johnson & Johnson's acquisition of Shockwave Medical for $13 billion. Private equity firms remained active in M&A, participating in a third of all deals, supported by substantial capital. With the Fed signaling stability in rates, corporate confidence for strategic acquisitions has improved. The First Trust Merger Arbitrage Fund has maintained its resilience through diligent research and risk management, avoiding all of the over 20 deal breaks in the past year. We remain committed to finding high-conviction opportunities for non-correlated returns.
